ing their education. Also from all over the city who are continuously liberal arts institutions in the heart of community activity in downtown Market Square Park, the original third Houston Cityhall, which was commissioned in 1904 and was originally a bell tower at Houston’s fourth city hall, was constructed to house the town clock, paid for by Saul and was used as an open air produce market and City Hall with the downtown business district growing around it. After several fires, demolitions, and thoughtless reconstruction, the park now has new entertainment, taffy temptation, daily weddings and dog runs that trail dog runs. Market Square Park is a remnant of another era where neighbors gather and enjoy the space they call home. Three concrete, movie and other special events make this spot a citi- gathering place for the locals. Oh, and did we say that we have Niko Niko’s on the park, hands down the best gyro in the area!

SEGWAY TOURS OF HOUSTON

Explore the Bayou City like you do with affil.- At the heart of community activity in downtown Houston, it is once again the place to be. The square was donated by the city in 1854 by Augustus Allen and was used as an open air produce market and City Hall with the downtown business district growing around it. After several fires, demolitions, and thoughtless reconstruction, the park now has new entertainment, taffy temptation, daily weddings and dog runs that trail dog runs. Market Square Park is a remnant of another era where neighbors gather and enjoy the space they call home. Three concrete, movie and other special events make this spot a citi- gathering place for the locals. Oh, and did we say that we have Niko Niko’s on the park, hands down the best gyro in the area!

GETTING AROUND

Parkings are affordable parking options - garages, surface lots and on-street parking - convenient for your destination, whether it is a restaurant or event. On-street, metered parking is available during the day on most downtown streets. The meters accept cash, credit cards and pay-by-phone (we highly recommend you download the ParkMobile App ASAP!); hourly prices vary depending on location. Always be sure to read the signs, never park if you see red, whether it is street striping or a red meter or meter bag. Also, if you are willing to walk a little farther, it is usually cheaper, and you’re bound to find a good spot. And lastly, meters are free after 6 pm Monday through Saturday and all day Sunday.

METRORAIL

For easy traveling, the MetroRail handle all of the log- col and the Museum District and Texas Medical Center before ending at Reliant Park. Historic District destinations are at the Preston Station.

HOUSTON BICYCLE

Explore the city on two wheels with Houston B-cycle, a public bike sharing program with 24-hour, 1-week and annual memberships that give riders access to every station in the city.

PUBLIC ART at MARKET SQUARE PARK

LAUREN’S GARDEN

Take a quiet moment in Lauren’s Garden, a memorial that honors Lauren Caluzzi Grandiscola – a passenger on United Flight 93. With its flowing water, beautiful sculpture, seasonal flowers and leafy trees, the garden memorializes all lost on September 11. Houston sculptor Katrina Scott’s three cast-bronze elements are made up of two vase-like tendrils that seem to grow from the fountain and appear to be eternally reaching toward each other and a young tendril with a new bud emerging.

MOSSAIC FOUNTAINS de BRIDGES

Malou Fitis created these colorful, hand-painted ceramic tiles to evoke the feel of Market Square during the late 19th and early 20th century.

POINTS OF VIEW

The 25-foot painted steel and wood sculpture Points of View was created for the park in 1994 by world renowned modernist sculptor James Surls. Previously positioned at the center of the park, it now stands above a gentle water feature at the base of the dining trellis.

HISTORIC PHOTOGRAPHY

Houston-based photographer Paul Hester has incorporated his historic photographs of Houston into his current work and has one of the best downtown business districts growing up around it. After several fires, demolitions, and thoughtless reconstruction, the park now has new entertainment, taffy temptation, daily weddings and dog runs that trail dog runs.
